

HISTORIC RESEARCH

We offer a variety of research services to provide critical evidence for legal professionals, businesses, and sovereign entities. Research associates expert in finding key documents traverse cyberspace, archives, libraries, and other repositories to ensure that all pertinent sources are consulted. Our staff organizes digital images of these documents into logical structures for ease in viewing and rapid recall. Our researchers are intimately familiar with collections at the National Archives repositories in Washington, DC, San Francisco, Chicago, Kansas City, and elsewhere. Some of these collections include:

- The Bureau of Indian Affairs (formerly Office of Indian Affairs)
- The Bureau of Land Management (formerly General Land Office)
- The Office of the Secretary of the Interior
- The House of Representatives
- The Federal District Courts
- The Bureau of Mines
- The National Park Service
- The Civilian Conservation Corps

Additionally, our researchers have extensive experience in numerous state and local repositories including:

- State Archives of Michigan
- California State Archives
- Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library (Springfield, Illinois)
- Minnesota Historical Society
- Oklahoma Historical Society
- Filson Club (Louisville, Kentucky)
- Burton Historical Collection (Detroit Public Library)
- Chicago Historical Society
- Bancroft Library (University of California, Berkley)

While Russell Overton brings the highest quality of expertise in conducting documentary research, we provide other related services to ensure documents are delivered to you in a manner useful to your purposes. Our diverse service offerings include such products as:

- Published and unpublished primary document research
- Secondary literature research
- Document imaging
- Archiving and database setup
- Analysis and database management
- GIS digital mapping
- Genealogy
- Document Transcription
- Expert Reporting

We are committed to dependable, quality service. Our team understands that a federal judge's deadline must be met. Therefore, we utilize state of the art, progressive project management systems to guarantee that your projects remain on-time and on-budget. Each project begins with a scope of work detailing cost, time line, and deliverables. Please contact us for an up-to-date schedule of rates and to develop a custom scope of work for your project needs.

Russell Overton
Lansing, MI

www.aarquives.com

(517) 321-2929
info@aarquives.com